Volume XVII Issue XIX

March 14, 2025

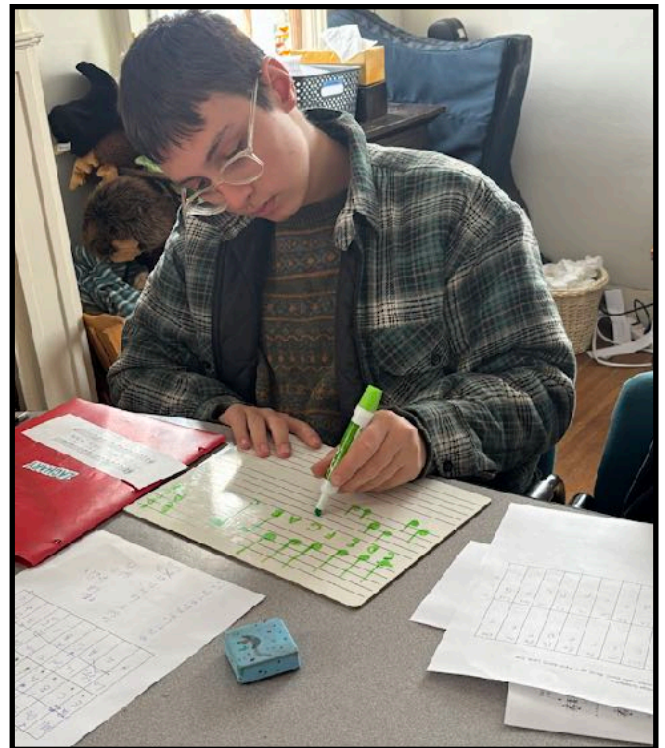

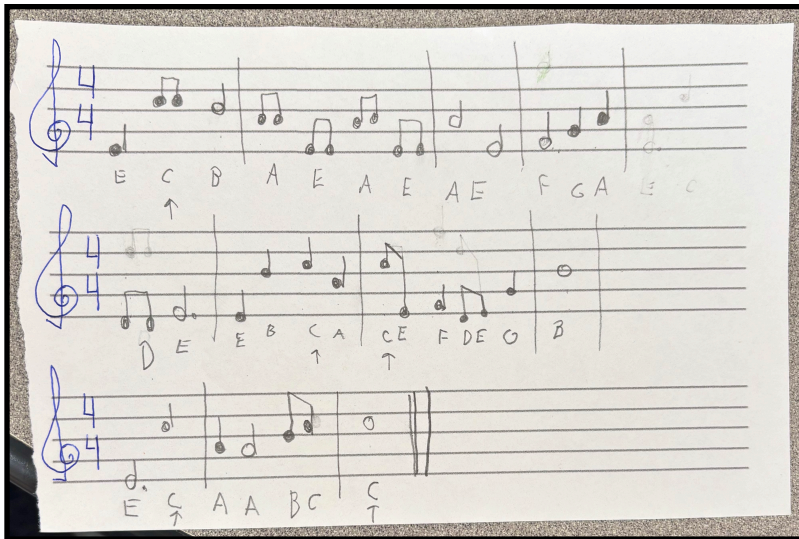

100 days of school! Last week was the 100th day of school. All the math classes celebrated the amazing 100 in different ways. Some counted to 100, some solved problems that equalled 100, others broke down the number, and Ms. Leah's advanced group had to design a 3-D cone with a volume of  $100\text{cm}^3$

Above: As the sun shined and the snow melted, we noticed one thing all over our beautiful village: trash! We split up into four groups during recess and quickly filled our bags.

Left: Miss Kelsey's literature group finished reading Trumpet of the Swan. They are now working on creating a field guide of some of the species they heard about in the book including birds, mammals, amphibians, and plants.

In music we played a game where we rolled dice with different music notes on them. Then we had to arrange the notes on the scale and then learn how to play them on the xylophone or the piano. By Zachary

We were exploring square and cubic numbers. Ama showed with blocks how the square numbers grow by adding the next odd number.
